Perception of Reality

(Writer wants to be anonymous)

In life you go through so many different things, situations, events, emotions, relationships, and they shape your reality and perception of the world. However, even those who have gone through similar experiences may perceive things differently, based on their mindset. If you watched a family member die before you, how does it affect you? How does it change your perspective of reality, of people, your mindset, and your life? Everyone's brain works differently, and how we interrupt actions, behaviors, and make decisions is based on our beliefs, experiences, values, knowledge, and mindset.

What you may perceive to be reality or "your truth" is the conclusion gathered from the data in addition to your perspective of certain people or events. Nothing you see is "reality," it's how you perceive reality to be. So, what is true reality? Who knows – we believe our reality to be what we perceive it to be. There is no "truth" about an event or reality, what we know is based on our perceived reality, as we believe this to be our truth or the true actions/events. Those around you, in any situation, may have seen something different since their perspective is different from yours. In order to gain an understanding of a situation you must visualize and see it from all other perspectives using the information given to you by others.

Effects of Events

As you experience different events, you change over time; it may be something small with a large impact depending how you analyze the situation. Unfortunately, everyone experiences tragic events in their life, but what you choose to do after these events are what make you who you are. How you recover from something, and what you take away from it will shape your perspective, knowledge, cognitive thinking, emotional well-being, physical well-being, and more. At times, it may seem far easier to give up on achieving something, or it may seem impossible to move past something, but with time, determination, and pure determination, you can get past it and achieve your goals. It may take you years to realize, but if you recognize that you don't like how you feel or notice things you want to change about yourself, you can achieve it. All it takes is one small goal—don't try to start up with something big, otherwise, it will seem impossible or overwhelming. Start small with your goals, make it something simple and easy and see if you can stick to it consistently. It may not seem like much, but that small commitment serves you far better than you can imagine in the moment.

Once you have completed this goal, or feel confident in your ability to maintain it, make another one. If you feel overwhelmed with something big, break it down. Break it into little pieces— into little goals you can work on. Then, when you feel comfortable with your progress, try to slowly put it all together or add on to your original goals. Don't try to overload yourself, or let fear deter you from things you enjoy, fear doesn't help anything.

Fear is there to hold you back, you have to learn to let the fear go; to allow yourself the freedom to wonder—to think freely without hindering yourself or having negative thoughts. I write all of this from personal experience, I still struggle with these things, but I'm working to better myself. I don't want to feel stuck in place or be held back by fear, or what others may think of me. Before Covid, I was confident with myself, I knew I could trust myself and I wasn't concerned with what others may think of me. Although, Covid left me isolated, stuck alone in a dark room that is my mind. Fear was all that was me: Fear of humiliation, embarrassment, sadness, and anger. Being disconnected from the world caused great damage to my social skills, my mental health, self-esteem, and brought so much anger. Thankfully, I was able to recognize my problems, the things I didn't like about myself, and have been able to mute my fears and keep them in check. They still linger in the back of my mind, but I've learned to not let it stop me from what I want to do. Instead of being so focused on others, I needed to focus on myself. I don't have a bunch of confidence or energy, one of my biggest issues was giving everything I had to help others at the cost of myself.

When you worry so much about helping others, and about what others may think of you it takes a severe toll on you, even if you don't realize it. Over time you stop enjoying activities you used to love, don't have enough energy or time for yourself when you're so busy stressing about what others think of you, and wanting to help everyone. So, the lesson in all of this is that you are in control of your reality. You are in control of YOU. Make small goals, strive to reach them, and don't let the fear or negative thoughts of your mind hinder you from becoming your best self.

Taylor swift

Ana F

Taylor swift is my favorite singer. Taylor swift is 34 years old and her birthday is on december 13. She sings and writes her own songs, having 14 albums. She is coming out with her newest album called The Tortured Poets Department. Also, if you follow her through any form of social media, you would know that her favorite animals are cats.

Taylor swift is one of the biggest singers. Through searching, I found that over 53% of Americans are “Swifties” (fans of Taylor Swift). Some people have the number 13 tattooed on themselves, to represent the day Taylor was born. Her fans wear 13 on their hands to every concert. Her most popular concert to date was The Eras Tour, which had 4.35 million people in attendance.

Taylor has done a lot of kind things, such as surprising an 11 year old female fan with a care package. She has donated $10,000 to a homeless shelter and $1,300 to charity. Taylor swift has a kind heart, in addition to being incredibly talented.

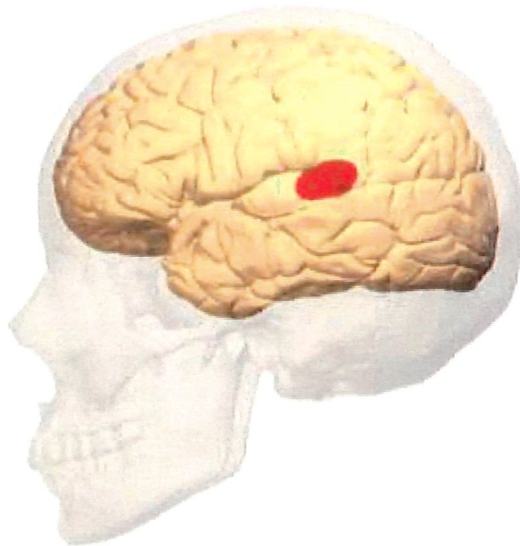

Hemispherectomy

By Scout French

A Hemispherectomy is a surgical procedure performed by a neurosurgeon where they remove the diseased half of your brain either halfway or fully, or disconnect it from the rest of your body. It is one of the most successful operations at stopping seizures. The recovery time from a Hemispherectomy can take as short a time as a few weeks or take as long as a few months. If children did not have any sort of paralysis prior to the surgery, the adjustment with hemiparesis can be quite difficult. Children may even have to relearn how to speak, as their language skills can be affected by the surgery.

Hemispherectomy causes a loss of movement or sensation on the side of the body opposite to where the Hemispherectomy was performed. After having a Hemispherectomy, many will need to relearn how to walk or they will have to use a wheelchair, if walking proves to be too difficult. The success rate of a Hemispherectomy has approximately $\frac{2}{3}$ of patients becoming completely seizure free.

What is the Canonical Cause of Teacher Shortage?

Abraham G.

The true reason why some states are in a shortage of teachers is unknown. There are some cuts on why people believe there is a shortage.

1: Low Salaries

One of the reasons why teachers are starting to rethink the option of pursuing teaching as a path is because of low income. Although the income is somewhat sustainable, it's not really worth it because of the working conditions they have with student behaviors.

According to data from the NCES, the average salary income for an American teacher averages up to $69,000, which is significantly lower than the annual salaries of other professions requiring a Bachelor's Degree. Even if you have a Bachelor's, the income still rises if you change your career path. Such as,, if you work as an accountant, salaries raise to $78,000, and if you change to a registered nurse, it raises to $81,000.

2: High Workload.

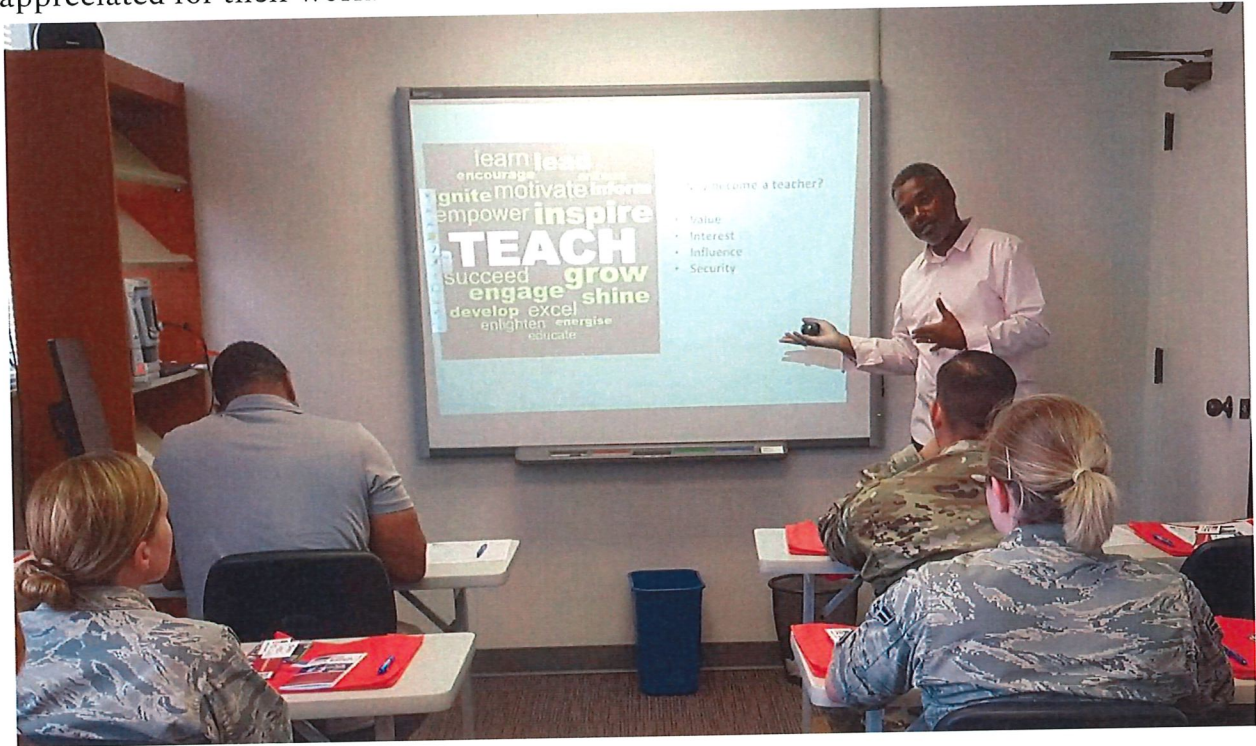

Teachers' workload has exponentially grown for the last couple of years. One teacher stated, "Overall, there wasn't much a teacher had to worry about, but some crisis came (Covid 19), causing most of us to take shelter indoors for safety measures." There wasn't much problem adapting to the temporary conditions, but the teachers did. During the crisis, teachers had to learn how to teach online while having to figure out how to provide both virtual and in-person instruction. This started causing teachers to become more stressed with the amount of workload they had to carry.

3: Unappreciated

Some teachers enjoy doing their jobs because their passion is to help mature the next generation, but it isn't as useful as it used to be. Recently aggression towards teachers from students has been rising.

Although there isn't much issue, as some teachers can just ignore the disruptions that some students have been causing, it's been harder; So hard, in fact, that some teachers quit because they can't handle the type of attitude students have been giving. The recent incline of teachers quitting per year because of student's has been at an all-time high. Students are starting to make teachers feel unappreciated and not wanted, which causes them to switch careers, where they earn more money and are appreciated for their work.

Daylight Savings

Austin K.

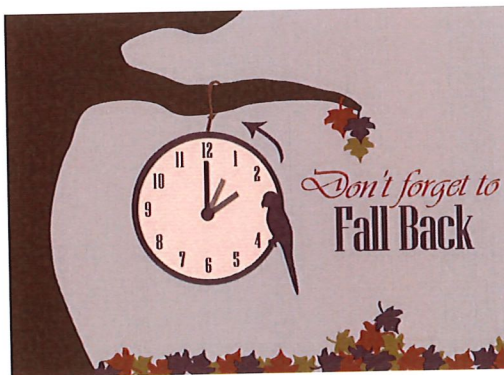

The practice of Daylight Savings Time has existed for many years in various parts of the world. While some people believe that DST is beneficial, others think that it's unnecessary and causes more harm than good.

One of the main arguments in favor of DST is that it helps to conserve energy. The idea is that by moving the clock ahead by one hour during the summer months, people will use less electricity for lighting and other activities in the evening. This, in turn, reduces the demand for electricity during peak hours and can help lower energy costs for individuals and businesses.

However, there are also arguments against DST. One of the main issues is that it can disrupt people's sleep patterns. When the clock is moved ahead by an hour in the spring, people may have difficulty adjusting to the new schedule and may experience sleep deprivation for several days. This can lead to a decrease in productivity and an increase in accidents on the road or at work.

Another issue with DST is that it can cause confusion and inconvenience. Not all states or countries practice DST, which can create confusion for people who live or work near the border or who travel frequently. Additionally, software and systems that rely on accurate timekeeping can be affected by the change, leading to errors and glitches.

In conclusion, the decision to implement DST is a complex one with both benefits and drawbacks. While some argue that it can help conserve energy and reduce costs, others believe that it can disrupt people's sleep patterns and cause confusion and inconvenience. Ultimately, the effectiveness of DST depends on a range of factors, including the location, industry, and lifestyle of the people affected

Scientists Find New Species On New Zealand's Coast

Kalani M.

Scientists from the team Ocean Census discovered what is estimated to be about 100 new species of ocean life in New Zealand's coast. The group collected approximately 1,800 samples from the deep sea, all the way down to 4,800 meters. They found species of Mollusks, Squid, and Coral that may be new to science. Many of the species are just new forms of pre-discovered fish, as well as a new species of Eelpout. There is one fish that is unknown and is unusual to the group. This fish is described to be "shaped like a star" which made the scientists believe it was some sort of Anemone or Sea Star, but with further investigation they ruled out that hypothesis, now thinking that it could be a form of an Octocoral. Octocorals are an eight-tentacled Soft Coral with multiple polyps.

Only 240,000 species of the estimated 2.2 million species have been found according to Census, though the findings have led them to believe that they are getting closer to finding much more ocean life.

Pre Draft

Ruben M.

Some teams have pulled off bold moves that seem to propel them towards their goals. The Atlanta Falcons set the quarterback market by luring Kirk Cousins away from the Minnesota Vikings on a four-year, $180 million contract with $100 million guaranteed. The Philadelphia Eagles awarded former NFC East rival Saquon Barkley a $46.75 million deal, one of the richest running back contracts in the last four years. The Houston Texans bolstered their defense by landing the leading pass-rushing free agent Danielle Hunter on a $49 million contract.

There were Also smart bargain deals like the New England Patriots signing Jacoby Brissett to be their bridge quarterback, headscratchers, like the Washington Commanders choosing Marcus Mariota, potentially for the same role, and gambles, like the Pittsburgh Steelers turning to Russell Wilson and Justin fields, Minnesota entrusting Sam Darnold with the task of replacing Cousins. An era ended as the Tennessee Titans let Derrick Henry depart for Baltimore, where he'll aim to help Lamar Jackson and the Ravens get over the hump. And in Henry's place, former Dallas Cowboys star Tony Pollard now takes over as the Titans future running back. And then Tennessee pulled off an upset, getting top wideout Calvin Ridley away from Jacksonville for $92 million ($50 million guaranteed).

Chivas Guadalajara

Julie N.

Las Chivas tienen todo mi corazón. Este equipo me hace sufrir muchísimo pero los morros más jaja. Bueno cada vez que juegan 11 morros del equipo me enamoro más de las Chivas. Yo desde que le voy a las Chivas los americanistas me odian y eso que yo no les hago caso. Las Chivas son toda mi vida. Ellos son mexicanos. Nosotros Chivahermanos toda nos duele el Mayo 28 de 2023, Ese día fue el día de la final e íbamos ganando pero nos dieron más tiempo, fue cuando Tigres nos metieron goles. Yo la neta no lo ha superado todavía me duele hasta el alma. A veces pienso que ese día podíamos ganar la 13. Este Año 2024 las Chivas han jugado bien y mal. Sobre todo ellos no se rinden. También tenemos un nuevo coach. Luego compramos al Cade Cowell, él es Americano e Mexicano. Es un buen jugador, ya tiene 4 goles con Chivas. Sobre todo a todos nós caio bien. El equipo es muy grande. Yo quiero que este año ganen la 13. Yo confío en mis Chivas. En que me ilusionan muchísimo todavía los quiero con todo mi corazón. Este equipo es mi felicidad y más. Si ustedes verán cómo me enojo cuando juegan, no más me siento y puro gritar.

Protesters Delay the Start of The Oscars in Support of a Ceasefire in Palestine

By Mariah Pardue

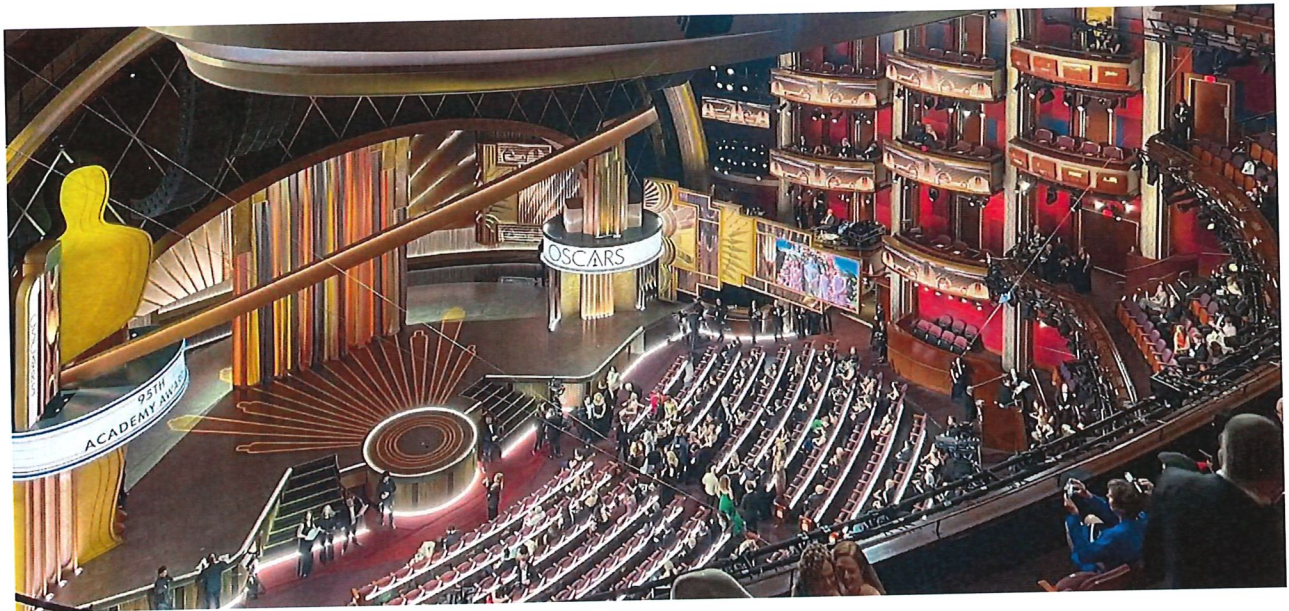

On March 10th, 2024, protesters crowded the only road leading to the Oscars, forcing the event to start a few minutes late, as well as causing many seats to be left empty. The reason for this protest? The refusal of our government to issue a ceasefire in Gaza. If you've been on social media at any point since the bombing of Hamas in October of 2023, you've probably seen or heard someone talking about it.

People waited for over an hour to walk the red carpet because of the traffic the protest caused. Many celebrities even walked up Sunset Drive to get to the Oscars on time. Poor Things star, Mark Ruffalo, shouted in support of the protest, "The Palestinian protest shut down the Oscars tonight. Humanity wins!" and his co-star Ramy Youssef said, "We're calling for an immediate and permanent ceasefire in Gaza. We're calling for the safety of everyone involved... It's a universal message of, 'Let's stop killing kids. Let's not be part of more war.' No one has ever looked back at war and thought a bombing campaign was a good idea. To be surrounded by so many artists who are willing to lend their voices, the list is growing. A lot of people are going to be wearing these pins tonight. There's a lot of talking heads on the news, this is a space of talking hearts. We're trying to have this big beam to humanity." These two, as well as many others, wore red pins to show their support for Artists4Ceasefire, a group of artists who support the end of the Israel-Hamas war.

Quite a few of the protesters managed to get past police barricades and stood on the corner of Hollywood and Highland for most if not the entirety of the ceremony with megaphones chanting things such as "While you're watching bombs are dropping," "Stop the killing, stop the slaughter, Gaza has no food or water," as well as "Biden Biden, what do you say? How many kids did you kill today?". Many protesters had signs that read things such as "No awards for genocide” “lives have been snubbed” and “Ceasefire now! Free Palestine.” Some even drove school buses with Palestinian flags flanking the sides. Regardless of the validity of their signs, or what we personally believe, war shouldn’t be the answer, and people standing up for their beliefs is an American right.

Dragon Ball Xenoverse

By: Tyler Wofford and Liam Wagoner

There are five usable custom character creation races. Majin, Saiyan, earthling, namekian, and Frieza race. The Majin is really good at healing but doesn't do good damage. Saiyans Are really good at damage and speed but barely have any hp. Earthlings are just an all round character. Namekians are good at blocking damage but are bad at speed. And finally, Frieza races, does a lot of damage but they have low hp.

For story and gameplay it's pretty straightforward. For the most part all you do is go on missions and fight other characters in order to progress further into the game and unlock more people. But there are also parts where you will encounter trainers or people who have special missions in the overworld area that can give you special abilities, attacks and transformations. There are also areas of the map where you can do other things like a custom built card game section. That's pretty much the entire gameplay for this main story mode.

In conclusion, there is a whole story and a bunch of gameplay about xenoverse, there is a lot of things you can do like play against bots or online people but you can also play in the story or just do whatever you want like make mods for the game and overall, the game is a 8/10 it would be ranked higher if not for the long introduction the confusing beginning and the repetitive gameplay.

Stars

Reese B.

What are Stars?

Stars are the 'little' bright dots you see when you look up at the sky at night. Stars aren't actually very little, our sun is actually a star and its name is Sol. Stars are big balls of fire that make the flame of the star, stars are mostly gas and do not have a solid core. Stars also make up constellations, there are also some star nurseries inside constellations, called a Nebula, stars come from Nebulas and Nebulas come from the leftover stardust of a dead star. There is a constellation called Orion, and inside the sword of the constellation is a nebula named the Orion Nebula.

What are Stars Made of and how?

Stars are made inside of Nebula's, when a very sufficient amount of gas all clumps in one place, the gravitational attraction gets larger and it collapses, making a protostar, or a baby star that will expand and live a very long life. Stars are made of Hydrogen, helium and a very small amount of some other gasses and elements. Stars are 98% Hydrogen and helium, other elements include Carbon, Nitrogen and Oxygen. Since interstellar space has no oxygen, some may wonder how stars can burn if there is no Oxygen, but stars are a nuclear fusion that does not rely on oxygen, it relies on the energy of which helium is produced.

The Death of a Star

The death of a star is very dramatic yet very beautiful, making a nebula when it dies full of color and stardust. Stars last billions of years, they live through the birth of other stars, the death of stars, new solar systems being made...But how a star dies is when the hydrogen runs out, without any hydrogen the star will fail to burn and light up the night sky and will eventually explode, the star expands and becomes a red giant, as it does it loses heat and mass, it'll start to shed its layers and become a white dwarf, then eventually explode and make a beautiful supernova. From Earth, if a star in the orion nebula exploded, we wouldn't know, see, or feel the explosion until a few hundred years or even thousands of years later because it's so far away, even traveling at the speed of light it'll take hundreds of years for the light from the supernova to reach earth, a star in a constellation could explode right now and we wouldn't know until maybe thousands or hundreds of years later.

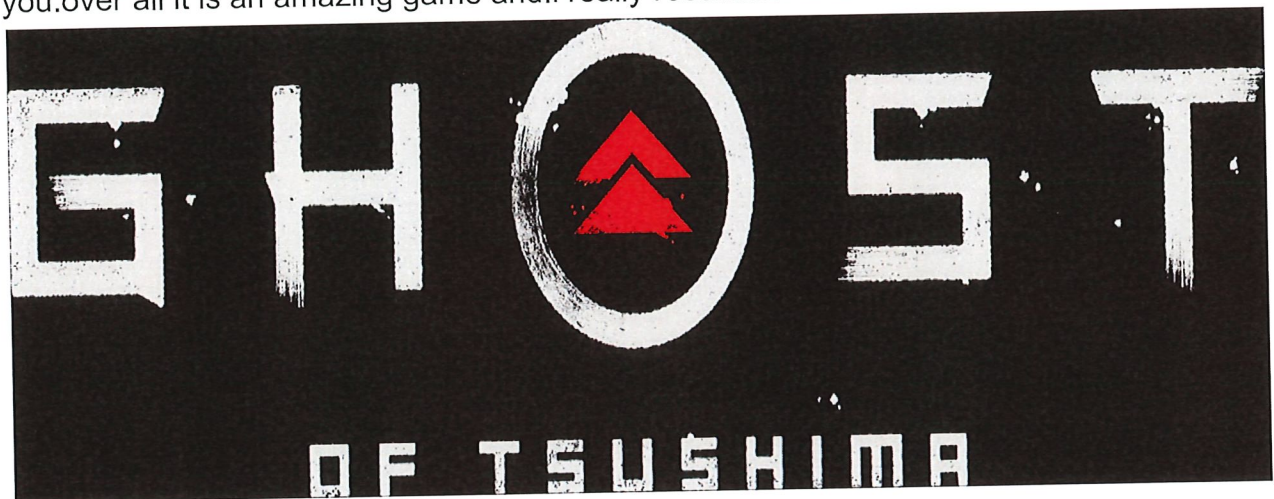

GHOST OF TSUSHIMA

Skyler B.

Ghost of Tsushima is an incredible game. It has an amazing storyline that takes about 26 hours to complete and around 61 hours to get 100% in the game. This game has so much to offer, in just the story itself. It is a very pretty game too, it has a bunch of fields of flowers and red, yellow and orange tree forests. This game also has amazing detail which you will see an example in the images below.

This game also has great free roam which means you will do a lot of exploring and adventuring. You can find items around the map from armor to a bamboo cut challenge. You are able to customize your armor any way you want. There is also magic in the game like if you play the flute during a storm it will make the sun come out like a storm never happened.

You can explore the island as much as you want. It goes from bamboo forests to a beach with a shipwreck on it. If you mark a destination on the map the wind will guide you. Over all it is an amazing game and I really recommend it.

Forrest Gump

Shawn E.

Forrest Gump is a movie starring Tom Hanks as Forrest. The movie starts with a feather falling from the sky that then ends up with Forrest waiting for a bus. Someone with new shoes sits on the bench next to him. He sees their shoes and then talks about his first pair of shoes with leg braces because his back is crooked. He goes to school for the first time and meets Jenny.

Kids bully him then Jenny tells Forrest to run. Forrest breaks out of his leg braces and out runs their bikes later how he gets into college by getting chased by the bullies in their cars and he runs onto the college football teams field and because he is running so fast that's how he gets to go to play college football.

He then gets invited to join the Army and he meets Bubba, who one day wants to be a shrimp boat captain. They get sent to Vietnam, where they meet Lieutenant Dan. Bubba sadly did not make it past Vietnam. Forrest got shot and Lieutenant Dan lost his legs. Forrest then served the U.S. by playing ping pong, got a sponsorship and became a shrimp boat captain with Lieutenant Dan as his first mate. All the other ships got stuck in a storm, so he and Dan had a lot of shrimp and so got a lot of money.

Forrest, later, reconnects with Jenny and Jenny lives with him for a while and gives Forrest new shoes. She leaves and Forrest runs for two and a half years straight. He then goes to Jenny's apartment, and he finds out that he and Jenny had a kid, Forrest Jr. Forrest and Jenny get married then Jenny passes away. Forrest Jr. goes on the same bus to school as his dad did. And that's all I have to say about that.

SONIC BOOM™ RISE OF LYRIC

(Go to View > Show Print Layout, and turn it off when viewing this document)
(For simplicity, the majority of this review will say the game title Sonic Boom, without the subtitle)

Sonic Boom: Rise of Lyric, is another awful game, not sugar coating it. The game was released one year after another awful Sonic game. Sonic Boom was released on the ill-fated Wii U. Although originally not going to be released in Japan due to its reviews, but they decided to do it anyway, and renamed it as Sonic Toon: Ancient Treasure. One of the main companies who developed the game, Big Red Button, actually had to close due to bad sales.

The Box Art is iconic for all the wrong reasons.

The plot of Sonic Boom is so awful, that I had genuinely forgot whilst playing the game. From what I remember, the plot starts with an ancient tomb and the main characters discover it, I believe. Then “Metal Sonic” essentially just defeats them. I had to pay, with my own funds, for this game, and it is just disappointing at best.

A massive issue with this game is it actually being fun. Most of the game is a long slog, with nothing to do. Once I was stuck on a level for around an hour, due to the game not being polished. They really should have delayed this game by at least a year, honestly. This is probably one of the reasons it’s regarded as one of the worst games of all time.

Sonic Boom’s levels are mediocre at best, and awful at worst. None of the game is memorable, and it is very broken. After I almost completed the game, I felt as if I had wasted my time and money. If they had put more effort though, this really could have been something good.

I got stuck on the final level due to my console constantly crashing. I wasn’t even able to complete the game I bought. This should be about all you need to know about this game to know if it is good or not. If I could, I would get a refund.

So, there it is. Sonic Boom: Rise of Lyric, reviewed on the Wii U. I’m surprised that they had even decided to publish this game, almost skipping it in Japan. Compared to the other games I had reviewed, this is probably the worst one yet. Even though it is just a game, they could have put way more effort in it.

Nirvana: a Generation Defined

Keygan H.

In Aberdeen, Washington, in 1987, a band was formed. A band that would change the tide of music for years to come, this band was Nirvana. Considered one of the most popular bands ever, Nirvana started off small with its four members. Kurt Cobain (Lead Guitar, Founder and Lyricist), Krist Novoselic (Bass Guitar), Jason Everman (Guitar) and Chad Channing (Drum Kit). In 1989 the band released their first song, "Love Buzz" and landed an interview.

Then later in 1989, they released their first album, "Bleach". Even though it is often overlooked by Nirvana's later albums, this album still had some hits such as "About A Girl", the aforementioned "Love Buzz" and "Floyd The Barber". In 1990, Dave Grohl joined Nirvana after Chad Channing left.

Later in 1990, Kurt met Courtney (The Witch) Love. She sent Kurt a Heart Shaped Box (This will come up later) with chocolates, a baby doll's decapitated head and a love letter, this didn't do much but show that they were aware of each other's existence. (from what I could find at least.)

In 1991 they released their most popular album "NEVERMIND", with their song Smells Like Teen Spirit being on MTV's rotation (y'know, back when they were Music Television) constantly. The hits on this album include In Bloom, Come As You Are, Something in The Way and Lithium. When it came out it was selling 300,000 copies a week. This is when Nirvana, Kurt Cobain, Dave Grohl, and Krist Everman became household names.

By this point, Nirvana had gone super sonic. (I forgot to mention earlier that Jason left in '89.) In 1991, at their own opening night they were kicked out of it for starting a food fight, further encouraging their anti-corporate motto. In late 1991, Courtney (THE WITCH) and Kurt got together. In 1992, there were amid rumors of the band disbanding (which didn't happen until much later) but in August, what most would say is the downfall of Nirvana, Courtney (THE WITCH) and Kurt got married. In August of that year, their daughter Frances Bean Cobain (Who was named after her looking like a kidney bean during Courtney (THE WITCH)'s ultrasound).

In September 1993 their third and final studio album was released, "In Utero" with hits such as "Heart Shaped Box", "All Apologies" and "Serve The Servants". This album sold Fifteen Million Units (Which is basically nothing compared to Nevermind, but still more than “Bleach”. (Nobody likes Bleach) In December of 1993, they went on their most famous tour, MTV Unplugged. Which consisted of 57 Minutes of music. In 1994 they went to Rome, the REAL beginning of the end.

On March 4th, 1994, Kurt overdosed on Roipnol and was rushed to the hospital. After he was in tubes for 3 days the first thing he wrote was “Get these tubes out of me, I want a milkshake.” He went into rehab in LA and then escaped to his home. The last 3 days of his life were certainly chaotic. Narduwar got his last interview with Kurt in early march. On April 5th, 1994, Kurt Cobain shot himself under the chin with a shotgun and wasn't found for another three days in his LA home. Now, there are a LOT of conspiracies about what truly happened and how Kurt died. Some say it was Kurt, some say it was Courtney (THE WITCH), some say it was a hired gun, others say it wasn't. Courtney (THE WITCH) has never and probably will never say anything on the matter. Frances Bean Cobain has grown up and married Tony Hawk's son. Dave Grohl, after Kurt died, started another popular band. Foo Fighters. Kurt's legacy lives on after 30 years after he died.

Neurology

Abigail C

Neurology is the study of treatment of disorders of the nervous system. Most neurologists get additional training. For example stroke, epilepsy, neuromuscular, Etc. The word Neurology comes from two words, neuron has the meaning of nerve, and logia means the study of.

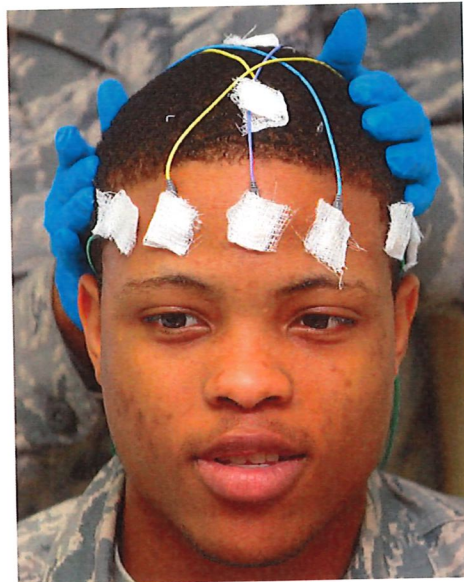

Neurology can involve the study of the central nervous system and structural and fundamental disorders of the nervous system. Neurologists also study Parkinson's disease and Alzheimer's. Thanks to neurologists we have been able to know more about these disorders and what we can do if we have any symptoms from these disorders.

Another thing it covers is the understanding of interpreting imaging and electrical studies. An example of this is an electroencephalogram scan that is also known as EEG. It's used to track the electrical activity of the brain for conditions such as epilepsy.

Some colleges one can apply to for a neuroscience degree are

Harvard Medical School, Baylor, UC San Francisco, NYU, UC San Diego, and Wake Forest University. There are a variety of colleges where one can get a neuroscience degree but these are just of the colleges in the U.S. In these colleges one can get an exceptional education and end up working as a neurologist. The average salary can vary from 120k-420k a year depending where one lives.

Neurology is a study one can be interested in if they are interested in the brain and how the body works. This can be a good choice if one wants to earn a good salary and do something they like to do.

Flowers

Kyleah L.

Many people know and love flowers. They're used for many celebrations like birthdays, Valentine's day, weddings, and even dance recitals. While flowers seem dainty and safe for people, many can cause health problems that you might not know about. They can also be poisonous for animals. Now, what are the best and worst flowers to get someone?

There are many safe flowers, even though many are dangerous. Some flowers that are usually safe are Sunflowers, Orchids, and Roses. These are all non toxic for animals as well as humans. Now when it comes to poisonous and dangerous flowers, they can be less obvious to spot. One poisonous flower is Lilies of the Valley. The Lilies of the Valley is a very dainty and beautiful flower, so pretty, you probably wouldn't know that they're poisonous. Lilies of the Valley can cause heart failure, irregular heartbeat, UTI's, epilepsy and more when used for self medication. The Mountain Laurel can cause burning on the lips and in the throat. Even though these flowers may be dangerous to some, others have no reaction to them.

While flowers can be sweet and nice, not all of them agree with everyone's body. They can be very dangerous to people who already have health problems. And while everyone has reactions to these plants, there's no way of telling if you'll have side effects to these flowers without buying them first. So, now that you know about poisonous flowers, will you be more cautious about the flowers you buy?

Super Mario 3D World is a game revealed at E3 on June 11, 2013 and released on November 22, 2013. The Nintendo Switch version was revealed on September 3, 2020 and released on February 12, 2021. At its reveal, the game was loathed for looking extremely unpolished, but that's due to its simply abysmal E3 reveal trailer. The game looked so bad in that reveal trailer that it was surprising that it turned out this good.

Gameplay

The gameplay is simple, choose a character, and run through the stage and get to the end before time runs out. The characters aren't just reskins of Mario. Similar to Super Mario Bros. 2, The characters are Mario, Luigi, Peach, and Toad. Mario is all-around good, Luigi jumps the highest, Peach can float, but runs slow, and Toad runs the fastest, but has the worst jump height. These characteristics all work to make every playthrough unique.

Development

The development of Super Mario 3D World began shortly after Super Mario 3D Land on Nintendo 3DS. Director Koichi Hayashida said "Super Mario 3D World is a 3D Mario game targeted at fans of New Super Mario Bros., as well as a continuation of Super Mario 3D Land." According to Hayashida, the multiplayer aspect of the game was hard to implement, due to the goal of the team being to perfect the camera to work properly in multiplayer. Kenta Motokura stated that the game was "highly intuitive and accessible." He never wanted there to be too much text in the game.

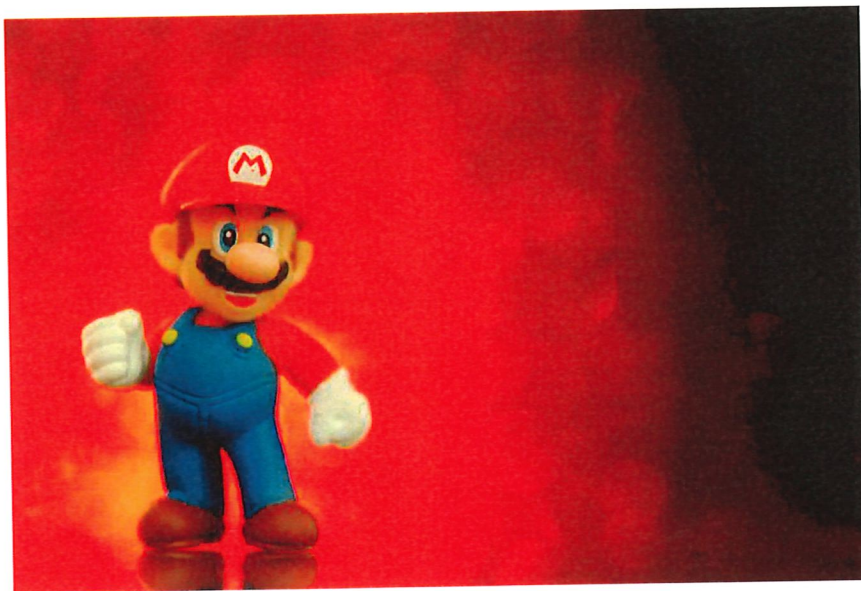

Super Mario 3D World + Bowser's Fury

As part of the 35th Anniversary direct, a port for the Nintendo Switch was announced. The game was released on February 12, 2021. The Cat Mario and Cat Peach amiibo were released alongside the game. This version adds online multiplayer, Snapshot Mode, increased speed, and 4 player co-op for the Captain Toad levels. All of these work to make the game a significant improvement on Nintendo Switch.

Conclusion

In conclusion, Super Mario 3D World is a great game, made better on Switch. From the variety of characters, the music being great, and the level design. It's no wonder why it's many people's favorite Mario game. I hope this game can be enjoyed for years to come. Thanks for reading!

EVER AFTER HIGH

LILY R.

It all starts at Ever After High, with the first main character Raven Queen. Raven is part of the rebels, which are the sons and daughters of the villains. The second main character is Apple White, and Apple is a part of the Royals and they are the sons and daughters of princes and princesses. Raven and Apple play the biggest parts of this story because each person at the school has to follow their parents legacy or follow in their parents footsteps. Raven doesn't want to follow in her mothers footsteps because she wants to write her own destiny but Apple wants to follow her legacy and without Raven, Apple might not get her happy ending.

Raven is the daughter of the Evil Queen and Apple is the daughter of Snow White. I think everyone knows the story of Snow White. The StoryBook of Legends is a book that they all sign to follow their bequeathal, Briar Beauty is the daughter of Sleeping Beauty and she thought that if Raven didn't sign the book Briar felt like she didn't have to either. Briar didn't want to sleep for 100 years like her mother did because she didn't want to miss out on anything fun, so when Raven didn't sign the first time she felt like she didn't have to either and that's when others thought about not signing. Ashlyn Ella is dating a rebel Hunter Huntsman and wants to not follow in her mothers step and her mother is Cinderella.

I don't watch this show anymore, because it's more for younger kids, but overall it's an ok show. It's a fun show though it's really just about some highschool girls and boys who live in school, but they're just a bit different, having villains and royal parents.
